Elmer Brown in Race for Circuit Clerk, Hempstead

Recalls His Narrow
Defeat of Four Years Ago

TEACHER 12 YEARS Qualified to Serve Pub- lic in Clerk's Office

Elmer Brown, Hope, announced Monday in The Star's political column he would be a candidate for circuit clerk in the Hempstead county primary election August 13.

Mr. Brown said:
"I sincerely solicit the vote and influence of each voter in my race for circuit clerk of Hempstead county. No doubt the voters will recall an introductory race I made for this same office four years ago, being defeated by a small majority.

"I deeply appreciate the faithfulness of those friends who stayed with me in my previous effort and the confidence they have in my prospects of being successful this time. In order to prove my appreciation for the faithfulness and confidence of my supporters I am eager to put forth every ounce of energy I possess in an effort to get the sufficient number of votes so that we may say, 'Victory is ours.'

"If elected, it is my determination to conduct myself and carry on the affairs of the office in such a manner that no one will have reason to regret their effort in helping promote me to a post in which I have longed to serve the people of my county since boyhood. I was reared in the north part of Hempstead county and the last twelve years of my life have been spent in various other parts of the county as a school teacher. I am a high school graduate and have had four years college work. Hence, with my experience as a public servant, along with my educational training, I feel that I am qualified to efficiently attend to the position to which I aspire.

"I hope you will take this as a personal solicitation for your vote. However, it is my plan to see each of you before that day and ask your support.

"Respectfully yours,
"ELMER BROWN."

Door Hits Man

HELENA, Mont.—(AP)—"I was standing on a corner, a door came along and knocked me cold."
That's a Butte man's story of how he got a black eye—and he's sticking to it.

He was on the curb, waiting to cross an intersection, when a car came along. A door flew open and the handle struck him and knocked him into a sign-post.

A doctor, who vouches for the story, was called to revive him.

Luther F. Higgason Enters Campaign for County Judge

Pledges Efficiency, and Co-operation on Roads

CITES DEBT CUT

Reduced County Debt
$25,552 in
1931-32

Luther F. Higgason, Hope, announced in the political announcement column of Monday's Star that he would be a candidate for county judge in the Hempstead county Democratic primary election August 13.

Mr. Higgason is a former county judge, having been elected in 1930, and serving from January 1, 1931 to January 1, 1933. He was born and reared in Hempstead county and is a farmer.

Mr. Higgason's statement follows:
"As a candidate for county judge I promise the voters and taxpayers of Hempstead that if elected I will handle the county's business with the same attention and efficiency that I give to my personal affairs.

And Co-operation
"I will co-operate with the federal and state governments in an effort to build good local roads wherever they are needed. I believe that regardless where a man lives in Hempstead county he should have a good road; and wherever it is possible I will aid anyone to get work on road construction.

"Today everybody is thinking about public debt. I promise you that as your county judge I will do everything in my power to put this county financially where she belongs—one of the strongest and best counties in the State of Arkansas.

"I will spend your money cautiously and wisely at all times, believing in paying good wages but demanding good labor.

Cities Debt Reduction
"Now I want to tell you about my previous record as county judge.
"When I took office January 1, 1931, I found Hempstead county $31,128.96 in debt.

"When I left office January 1, 1933, your county owed only $5,574.69.
"In my two years as judge I reduced the Hempstead county debt $25,552.27.

"Everybody likes to spend money.

Homer Adkins in Race for Governor

Resigns as Federal Collector to Make State
Race

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Homer M. Adkins, 49-year-old United States revenue collector for Arkansas, entered the race for governor over the weekend in one of a series of developments injecting life into a pre-ticked closing campaign marked by inertia for many weeks.

As Adkins announced in a formal statement that he had resigned his $6200-a-year federal position to seek the $7000-a-year governorship, Attorney General Jack Holt removed himself from the 1940 gubernatorial picture with an announcement that he would seek a third term.

With Wednesday noon the final hour for qualifying to participate in the democratic primary elections August 13 and 27, no word was forthcoming from three others mentioned as possible candidates for governor. They are Governor Carl E. Bailey, former Congressman John L. McClellan of Camden, and Lieutenant Governor Bob Bailey of Russellville.

Fervish activity in high administration circles indicated that Governor Bailey's announcement for a third term was only hours away.

McClellan, after two days of conferences with friends here, checked out of a local hotel late Saturday and it was reported that he had returned to Camden. Several of Bob Bailey's supporters expressed belief he would run again for lieutenant governor.

Frank B. Whitte of Magnolia, a former state revenue department employee now in the oil business at Magnolia, qualified for the governor's race Friday and Dr. Walter S. McNutt of Arkadelphia has announced his candidacy, subject to a decision of the democratic state committee whether his name goes on the ticket.

McNutt ran as an independent in 1938. Adkins' announcement was interpreted in some quarters as the signal

Hitler Shoots Works: Gambles for Rule, Against Starvation

Control of Europe Stake for Which He Casts the Dice

But He Has to Reckon
With Britain and France

BRITISH HOLD SEA And French Possess Best Single Army in the World

By THOMAS M. JOHNSON
NEA Service Military Writer

Hitler gambles starvation by blockade against rule over Europe—or over even more than Europe.

Our own peace too is threatened by the Nazi invasion of Holland and Belgium. If it succeeds we are alone in a world largely hostile.

Will it succeed?

The Nazis could win a minimum objective by overrunning northern Holland where the Dutch can fight little but delaying action, and British help can arrive only by narrow seas. In such seas Germany's air power has just recently stymied British sea power. Air power may well enable the German army to win this minimum objective in Holland, whereupon German planes and submarines can intensify the danger to already endangered Britain.

But that will hardly win the war this summer. To do that, Hitler must strike the main Franco-British armies a shattering blow and now the best opening is through the low countries.

Holland and Belgium are flat, far more free of natural barriers than the French frontier. The Kaiser took this northern route in 1914. He spared the Dutch, but completely surprised the weak Belgian army, blew up its forts with new heavy artillery.

Both Belgium and Holland Ready

Today Hitler tackles Dutch and Belgians both. Although both are fully warned, strongly fortified and have—Belgium especially—good armies totaling a potential 1,500,000.

They are weakest in the air with perhaps a thousand planes of different types combined. Germany has a superiority in the air over the allies in the west of 3 to 2 or even greater. It is superior enough to hamper or British efforts to land troops by sea in northern Holland, although here the good Dutch navy will help.

That, more than conquest of northern Holland, is the maximum German objective.

Evidently the Nazis are trying to drive a spearhead between Holland and Belgium and with the Maas river as protection sweep out westward, flank the Maginot line and beat the allies in the field. This movement the Nazi air force is aiding by landing troops to seize the Dutch canals, flooding stations, and the Belgium railroad junctions through which would come allied reinforcements from France.

British Not Fitted for All Fronts

Some British units are seasoned regulars. More are newer formations better fitted for holding quiet French sectors than for such open warfare as we shall now see, lightning-like in its rapidity, fearful in its demand on troops and especially on officers.

But the French are another story. Theirs is the best army in Europe in organization, homogeneity, staff work and peace time training. The Nazis surpass it in equipment and in fighting experience.

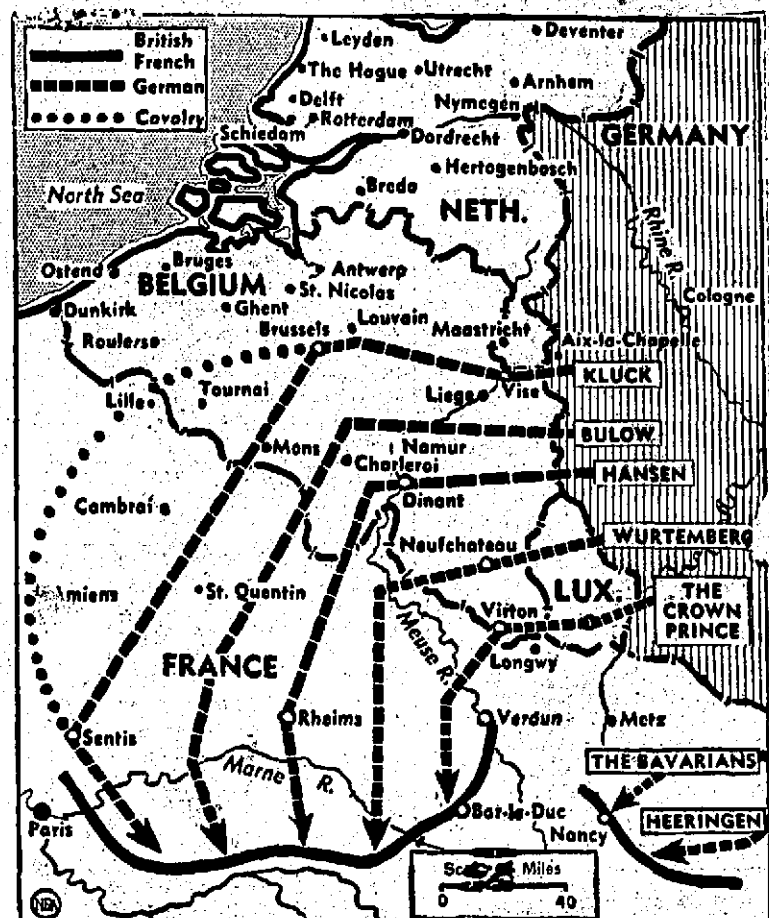

That experience was gained against under-equipped Poland and unaware Norway. Now Germany strikes the real thing. Her hope is not in her army alone but in the air power that largely won those trial heats. On both she bases a prodigious gamble.

If she seems to be winning, she probably counts on Mussolini joining in attacking France. The bombing of Lyons and of Switzerland may be preparations or diversions. France may be squeezed in the pincers north and south or France and Britain may counter-attack through the Balkans. Then, who knows what Russia will do and Japan? Armageddon has begun.

Firemen Save Fire

KIPP, Kans.—(AP)—"Twas a strange spectacle the volunteer fire laddies made as they rused the furnishings from the blazing home of A. W. Sundgren, near here. Out they came carrying the heating stove, a fire blazing cheerily in it.

Nature requires between 400 to 100 years to replace one inch of topsoil.

Hitler's attack through Holland and Belgium follows much the same plan the Germans used in 1914 on the Western Front, except that the 1914 model includes Holland. The map above shows the strategy of 1914 based on an elaborate plan drawn up by Count Schlieffen, then chief of the German general staff. Schlieffen's plan concentrated the German forces on the western wing, to carry out a gigantic scythe movement with five armies through Belgium and northern France. The original Schlieffen plan provided for attack through Holland—which Hitler has now made his. This plan was abandoned by German military leaders said after 1918 that such deviations lost the war.

A vicious semi-circle opposite the British Isles is the aim of the German drive into the Netherlands and Belgium. May shows how Hitler would complete his springboard for blitzkrieg against England by subjecting completely the two low countries.

WEDGE CAMPAIGN

Germans Trying to Split Belgians and Dutch

BERLIN.—(AP)—DNB, official news agency reported Monday one of the German armies sweeping into the Lowlands has captured about 18,000 Dutch soldiers, while at one point in South Holland, a Dutch general and his staff were seized.

DNB said 600 French soldiers were captured in an action south of Saarbrücken on the Maginot-West Wall front, in which the German lines were pushed forward.

Germans Advancing
BERLIN.—(AP)—DNB, the official news agency, said the German occupation of the Groningen province in northern Holland was completed Monday when the German forces advanced everywhere to the Zuider Zee, first reached Sunday at Harlingen.

The report came after the German high command announced that German troops had broken into strategic Liege, and the German flag had waved over the citadel of the famous fortress since morning.

Belgian troops fighting bitterly against the crushing German advance, however, are offering opposition in some of the outer forts of Liege, it was said.

In Brussels, the Belgian high command declared the Belgian forces maintained their positions everywhere during Sunday night, but acknowledged early Monday "enemy forces delivered a new attack against all our positions."

(An authoritative British source said the German offensive in the Netherlands was developing as expected, attempting to drive a wedge between the Belgian and Dutch armies.)

Dutch Retiring
Amsterdam.—(AP)—The Dutch command admitted Monday its forces were making strategic retreats under pressure of heavy German attacks, but still held their water defense lines.

It was announced the Dutch forces in the western Gelderland provinces—below the Zuider Zee—are taking a stand behind the inundation line against the German force which crossed IJssel river and have "come into contact at some points" with Dutch forces.

Nazi Tunnel Blasted
BASEL SWITZERLAND.—(AP)—French artillery, and Allied air bombs Monday afternoon shattered part of the Istein railroad tunnel under Germany's "Gibraltar of the Rhine."

Its destruction closed to military traffic a section of the vital army railroad incorporated in the West Wall fortifications.

The new raid and the shelling of the southern side of the bridge of Istein road severed Germany's direct connection with Basel.

Dutch Withdraw
AMSTERDAM.—(AP)—The Dutch high command reported Monday that German troops have crossed the Maas and IJssel rivers and that Dutch frontier troops had retreated. The communique follows:

"German troops have at various points crossed the rivers Maas and IJssel. Our frontier troops have been partly withdrawn to the interior.

"Dutch planes have bombed advancing German troops.

"French troops are in contact with the enemy in East Brabant.

"The northern provinces, which had no defenses, have been entered by the Germans. Our frontier troops have withdrawn while slowing up the German advance. Some further parachutists were landed in various places in the interior but were overcome.

"German parties landed during the first day of the invasion seized motor buses containing civilians. Our armored cars have dealt with these. The Germans do not seem to be able to fight in The Netherlands unless they can use Dutch soldiers or civilians as a shield.

"Our artillery have successfully attacked Waalhaven airport near Rotterdam.

"Mopping up activities in Rotterdam are nearing their end. The Royal Dutch Marine is acting with the Allied navies.

"In the interior, the Dutch military command has its position fully under control."

The Dutch Indies — West and East

The invasion of the Netherlands, because of her overseas colonial empire, makes it possible that she will splinter from the European war may fall directly into both the western hemisphere and the Far East.

The Dutch Indies—in the west, off the northeastern coast of South America; and in the east, off southeastern Asia—may very possibly be affected by the new turn of the war.

At this point it is desirable to do some quick and clear thinking about these problems as they may affect the United States. It has been widely suggested that either or both might be protected by the United States against force.

The first thing to keep clear in connection with any such move is why?

And the only possible answer is some direct effect on the vital interests of our own people.

Any forcible invasion or occupation of Dutch Guiana and the Dutch West Indies, Curacao, Bonaire, Aruba, St. Eustatius, Saba, St. Martin would put the invaders in a direct position to threaten the Canal Zone and the American continent.

This the American nations cannot and will not permit. It would concern not only the United States but all the American nations. They should together announce to the world that by joint action they will prevent it.

That brings us to the East Indies. The clear American position regarding the West Indies is due not alone to a very real regard and respect for the Netherlands and their rights, but also due to self-interest. Does the same consideration apply to the East Indies, 9000 miles out in the South Pacific?

Would seizure of the Dutch East Indies imperil any American interest measuring up to the cost of a Pacific war? That is the plain question which must be asked by those who are charged with framing American policy.

We have already indicated that we would be deeply concerned with any invasion of the East Indies.

The question is, how deep should our concern be, based on American self-interest as seen from both the immediate and the long-range point of view?

HOW to EAT to BEAT THE HEAT
By ALICE H. SMITH
Nutritionist, Cleveland Health Council

You Can't Eat That? That's What You Think! Here's the Real Truth.

What! You can't eat that? How often are you troubled—or think you're troubled—by certain food combinations? Are you sure you can't mix your proteins and your starches? Do you have to eat your vegetables in the "natural" state?

Well, there are a lot of people like you. Somehow the idea is pretty prevalent that this is "toxic" or that is "acid." And there are real digestive troubles. In such cases a physician should be consulted. But, generally speaking, most of these food "fads" are totally without foundation.

You can't mix your starches and proteins? "Oh, I never do that," you hear someone say. Carefully that person avoids roast beef and mashed potatoes, or broiled fish and a glass of milk at the same meal. Yet that same person will smack his lips at the mention of oyster stew, lobster a la Newburg, codfish cakes, or baked beans and Boston brown bread, all combinations of starch and proteins.

The trouble with your stomach is often mostly in your head. Nature, fortunately, has the foodmixing problem pretty well in hand. Milk, for example, contains both sugar (starch is changed to sugar in the process of digestion) and protein. Likewise all cereals contain both protein and starch also vegetables.

In fact, there are very few pure starches and proteins and they would not only provide unattractive meals but deficient ones. Even starch in the form of flour contains some protein.

But your food is "toxic," you say. Normally, food isn't toxic. That's one thing to remember next time you begin to worry about food combinations.

Of course, there are some people with definite allergies, and to them certain foods are toxic. These obviously should be avoided. A physician should advise in such cases. But, generally, were you to avoid several foods because they were "toxic," you would run the danger of diet deficiency which might result in troubles much worse than sensitivity or allergy.

The same holds true for "acid" foods. Normally, tomatoes and citrus fruits do not cause an "acid condition." The acids in these foods are normally burned or oxidized and their residues are alkaline.

Confessed "Past" Bad For Marriage

Doctor Advises Not to Tell of Past Love

AP Feature Service
CHAPLAIN HILL, N. C. — If you're married and have a "past," don't confess it to your mate, advises Dr. Ernest R. Groves.
"I don't believe much in confessions," he says.
But Dr. Groves, the man who established America's first college course in marriage, is not recommending that married people or unmarried people either go out and create pasts. He means that confession often makes mountains out of molehills, often opens up sore subjects, often, indeed, defeats its own end by starting trains of thought which lead anywhere but in the direction intended.

And more than 40 years of thought have not revealed any startling new causes of marital difficulty. The trouble is mostly sex. Dr. Groves avers. Only about 25 per cent of the troubles that come to him are based on other factors.

"As far as I can see," says he, "there are no marked tips and downs in marriage difficulties which correspond to such things as world affairs. The depression did not increase or decrease the number of cases that came to me."

Marital problems usually are more acute among younger couples, he finds. Between 20 and 28, I should say, the problems are largely preventational and usually acute. But it is also true that this is somewhat relieved because I get a great many nowadays before marriage, so that I can chart the shoals in advance. And the younger couples are as a rule less hampered by their situation and my questions.

The next decade, I find, contains more chronic problems—things that have struck in pretty deeply, perhaps been suppressed for years. And after that I find the period of what I might call "the foetus of domestic life."

"This is the time of stenographer and ice man trouble, when men and women do foolish and often futile things. It would help everybody if we all knew that after there is very often an awakening of fertilities, as well as the presumed tendency toward normal."

Dr. Groves believes that a lot of marital difficulty comes because women "play sex badly," as he says. They don't understand that a successful marriage depends on a successful use of all the resources of both the parties, so they often exaggerate small deficiencies into major sins.

Formula for Killing Trees
Several inquiries have been made relative to a caustic formula for killing trees. We have prepared the following formula and directions for preparing this compound, through the cooperation of the Farm Management and Farm Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture:
To one gallon of water (some have prepared this solution with two gallons of water instead of one, with good results) add one pound of white arsenic and bring the mixture to a boiling point. Then add two pounds of soda and boil until the mixture becomes clear, which will be in 25 to 48 minutes.
In case caustic soda is used instead of soda ash, use only one pound for each pound of white arsenic. To prepare the compound with caustic soda, buy the granulated form which can be obtained from dealers in laundry supplies or from large wholesale druggists. Put the required amount of water, in a barrel and pour in the caustic soda. The action of water upon the caustic soda generates sufficient heat to dissolve the arsenic which should be poured in slowly (to prevent foaming over and thus preventing possible scalding and scattering of the poison) as soon as the water begins to steam. Stir vigorously with a wooden paddle until the mixture cools. If all the arsenic has not dissolved, heat until it goes into solution, but if done correctly all the arsenic should dissolve the first time. If a little whitening is added to this solution it will be easy to tell which trees have been treated.

Both the arsenic and the caustic soda are exceedingly poisonous and great care should be taken not to inhale or swallow any of the dust or fumes arising when the preparation is being made. Do not prepare this compound in any vessels that may afterward be used in the house or for feeding stock, and it should not be left where irresponsible persons or stock can have access to it. Stock should not be turned into the field where it has been used until rains have washed away all the poison.

To use the preparation, cut gashes through the bark in the trunk of the tree. The cuts should be made shallow, just into the sapwood and close enough so there will be a ring of poison around the tree. Make the cuts so they will retain the poison instead of permitting it to run down the trunk. A large spoonful of liquid should be poured into each cut. An old teakettle with a long spout is a satisfactory vessel to use in applying it to the tree.

Generally it is used during the early part of the growing season but some claim it to be most effective if used in the early fall. The solution tends to become less effective if kept longer than six months. If kept in an air-tight container, however, it will retain its strength much longer.

The species of trees which seem most susceptible to the poison are the hard-woods, including elms, maples, oaks, locusts, and ash. Gums, persimmon, Hickories, pines and cottonwood are less liable to be killed.

Death Valley Scotty Sad Over Cocktail Bars; DeMille Sad Over Paunchy Hollywood Indians

HOLLYWOOD — One-minute interviews:
JANE WYMAN—I'm what you might call an accidental actress. I came here, met an agent and got a contract—all by accident. It will be another accident if I ever get to do serious stuff. When I go into a dramatic scene everybody on the set laughs and says, "Next week—East Lynne!" It's this darned snub nose that does it; it pegs me as screwball. When I first—pardon me; they want me for this scene."

ERNEST SCHOEDSACK (director and co-producer of "Dr. Cyclops")—I've got an idea for a picture. It may be a little too revolutionary just yet, but some day I swear I'm going to make a movie about a scientist who is not mad!"

ROBERT TAYLOR—"Nothing bothered me much when I was new in Hollywood. Like singing in the Broadway Melodies—I thought, 'What the devil, you're just in here on a shooting, so why get nervous?' But today, if they told me I'd 'have to' write a picture, I'd probably rush out and take voice lessons for three months."

PAULETTE GODDARD—"That fellow wanted me to invest some money in a prize fighter. I told him I didn't want a fighter; I need a manager myself. You ought to see the fight I do with Lynn Overman in this picture. I go after him with a scythe."

CECIL DEMILLE—"I've had to import a lot of Indians for the picture. Yes, there are quite a few already here but the trouble with Hollywood Indians is beer. With those paunches, they look like comedians, not savages."

SIDNEY FRANKLIN—"We've had to postpone 'The Yearling' until next March, when we can have some new fawns to photograph. The movies can control almost anything—but not the time of year that deer are born."

AN ACTRESS (talking about a rival)—"There was more of a plot to the story of how she got her job in Hollywood than there has been in any picture she has played in since."

JACK DAWN (discussing his plastic makeup)—"No, I'm not a chemist, and it's lucky I'm not because the chemists all told me it couldn't be done. I'm working on something else now. I go out in the kitchen at home and cook up smelly messes of rubber in all the pans. My wife is a very patient woman."

GRADY ROGERS Gives a Definition
DEATH VALLEY SCOTTY (at a cocktail bar)—"I don't know why I came into these places; it makes me sad every time I think of how the west has changed. These days, the gamblers are playin' solitaire and the dance-hall girls are takin' in washin'."

JOAN CRAWFORD—"The only players who don't like Hollywood are the ones who haven't been successful here."

JANE WYMAN (back from the set)—"When I tried for a job at Paramount, Phyllis Laughton said, 'Baby, you have absolutely no talent. At Metro, Rufus LeMarle told my agent, 'Don't ever drag a cold fish like that into my office again!' A few more turn-downs like that made me mad. I said, 'Wyman, if they think you're as lousy as all that, you must have something!'"

You see approximately 1200 stars when you glance up into the sky on a starry night.

WPA Aid Project to Hold Openhouse

Public Invited to Project May 20-25

The WPA Housekeeping Aid Project, under direction of Mrs. Nona K. Steel, will hold open-house from May 20 through May 25, at the project center at the old fire station.

The project furnishes free home assistance in general housework, care of children and care of the aged and sick in the homes of needy people. This help is given only when an emergency makes such assistance necessary. This project will operate throughout the state.

The State Welfare Department is the official sponsor of this program. The workers are trained in all modern methods of cleaning, home improvements, health, food and clothing.

Members of the project advisory council are:
W. S. Atkins, Syd McMath, Mrs. H. O. Kaylor, Mrs. J. A. Neighbors, Mrs. Terrell Cornelius, Mrs. Cecil Weaver, Mrs. Fred White and Mrs. B. C. Hollis.

Many useful and attractive articles are made from barrels, nail kegs, apple, peach, apricot and all kinds of fruit boxes. Clothing of every description is remodeled. All of these articles are distributed to different needy families. The public is invited to help make this a more worthy project, and to visit and see the plan in operation.

Reduce Sentences of Bone Brothers

Second Degree Murder Made Voluntary Manslaughter

LITTLE ROCK —(P)—Second degree murder convictions of two negro brothers for the slaying of a white woman during a cotton field altercation with her husband near Little Rock in 1938 were reduced to voluntary manslaughter Monday by the State Supreme Court, which cut the sentences from 21 to seven years.

The ritual held there was no malice aforethought on the part of Rome Bone, 25, and Mose Bone, 21, twice convicted of firing the shot which killed Mrs. John Deaver while negroes were in a fight with her husband.

Better Homes Program began in Hempstead County May 1st, with a flower show in connection with the May Day Pilgrimage.

The rose club, Mrs. J. C. Carlton, President, had a lovely exhibit of an out-door garden at the city hall. The county council of Home demonstrators exhibited eighty-three different arrangements of flowers. Mr. Youmans, of the Garland gardens, had a beautiful exhibit of all different types of tris. Home demonstrators of paint-dress, hand-made bed spreads, children's toys and picture maps of Arkansas were added features of the flower exhibit.

Mr. George Ware of the Fruit Branch Experiment Station had an exhibit of before and after landscaped farm homes. Mr. Oliver L. Adams, the county agent, exhibited the different types of grasses and pasture crops that make better pastures for Hempstead county.

Across the hall from the city courtroom, where the flower exhibit was arranged, the county library featured an arrangement of typical reading matter for better reading in the family library.

Community Homes Program
Know your community, is the theme of better homes program for 1940. The Patmos Community carried this theme through on Sunday, May 5th, with their community homes program.

Mt. Nebo and Hinton community joined in. The program was begun at 11 o'clock at the school house with the following program rendered: Welcome address—Mrs. John Wallace, Devotional—Mrs. E. J. Drake, Community Singing—led by Mr. Ray Smith, Address—Community of Better Homes and How Each Family Can Help—Mary Claude Fletcher, Solo—Mary Louise Keith, accompanied by Harriet Story, Address "Education for Live"—Mr. E. R. Brown, Address "Character Building"—Judge Frank Rider, Benediction—Mrs. O. B. Rider.

After a beautiful picnic lunch, seventy five people in caravan style, started their tour over the community. The first place visited was the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Drake. The Home Demonstration club women had gathered together their handicraft—home-made quilts, spreads and hand-made furniture and other articles were all viewed. The Drake's impressive yard was also enjoyed.

Through the community the following places were viewed, each with their lovely improved yards: W. S. Gordon, Lynn Jones, Grady Rogers, G. H. Black, Berlin Jones, Oliver Rider, Hamp Huettle, A. N. Rider, E. J. Drake, C. P. Jones Harold Payne, Elbert Rider, Ben Burns, Bert Keith, O. T. Rider, Earl Jackson Hendrix Owens, Monroe Kent and John La-ha.

The caravan moved on, next viewing the Middlebrooks home, to see the well land-scaped yard. On to the Hinton Ranch where an old log cabin has been converted into a modern farm home.

Other points of interest were the Eldridge Farm's new house and yard, Dan Laha's and Ben Horton's remodeled homes.

The tour was completed by going to the Mt. Nebo church to see the project of the Mt. Nebo Home Demonstration Club Members—the church yards and keeping the cemetery.

The maximum earthquake period for the United States is between October and March.

From Jungle Boy to Schoolboy

Stranger than the fiction of Kipling's Mowgli, "The Jungle Boy," is the story of this young El Salvador Indian boy. In 1933 farmers of the Sonsonate province captured, after many months' search and a severe fight, a strange jungle "animal." The "beast" was a 5-year-old boy. Farmers guessed his parents died when he was two; that he lived on fish and berries, killing jungle enemies, like poisonous snakes, with his bare hands. Today Ruben Marroquin, now 11, and thoroughly "civilized," still returns to the jungle where, as seen at left, he exhibits ape-like prowess in tree climbing. But he always returns to school (right), where he is rated a good scholar.

Wendell Willkie Boom Growing; Perhaps too Late

WASHINGTON — The Wendell Willkie presidential boom interests Republican politicians more and more, but so far the chances that it will actually get him any important number of votes at the convention are not too good.

Trouble is the boom started late. By now most of the delegates have a pretty fair idea where they're going. Willkie could be nominated, of course, if two or three of the important contenders should decide to throw their strength to him, but so far there are no signs that this is likely to happen.

One thing in his favor is a growing feeling that while the "stop Dewey" game may succeed it is likely to derail the candidate who does the stopping. If that happens, Willkie might inherit some important delegations.

U. S. Export Boom Largely War Trade

U. S. export trade is booming, but the figures show it is pretty much war materials boom. Exports have run better than $350,000,000 a month since Jan. 1—highest figure in years—but exports of such staples as corn, wheat, tobacco, fruit and passenger autos have actually gone down.

Sharply up are exports of iron and steel products, metal working machinery, aircraft parts and accessories, chemicals, tractors, trucks and raw cotton—all of which are highly useful in war.

Also significant is the fact that the bulk of the increase in our export trade is made up of increased sales to the allies.

Statistics: France bought no U. S. aluminum at all in the banner year of 1937, and is now buying it at the rate of $500,000 a month. England's purchases of aluminum have likewise jumped from an $8,000 monthly average three years ago to $380,000 for March.

French purchases of U. S.-made metal-working machinery are five times the 1937 average; English purchases of our industrial chemicals have doubled, and so on.

Peanut Peddler to Become Citizen

Sold Peanuts to Every President Since Harding

By JAC KSTINNETT
WASHINGTON — Steve Vasilakos, who has peddled peanuts to every President since Harding, says it's time he became an American.

"I'm good American now," he grins from the goosier emporium he operates on the sidewalk outside the White House grounds, "only I ain't got papers."

Come August 6, Steve is sure he will have this technicality out of the way, for he predicts that he will pass the citizenship examination as sure as popcorn pops.

Steve arrived from Greece 30 years ago and, after a brief career in the back of a restaurant, launched himself in the peanut-popcorn business.

He doesn't recall the details of how he got up courage to roll his cart up to the executive mansion.

"I come here with friend," he said, "and the people buy. Some days President's wife buys. Everybody sees my peanuts-popcorn is good. They let me stay."

Five years ago, the capital police chased Steve away from his post. They decided his unpainted cart at the busy intersection was a traffic hazard. He complained bitterly. President Coolidge used to be a personal customer. He said Presidents needed his peanuts.

The police showed him traffic choked Pennsylvania avenue and the tourist-filled East Executive Avenue.

"You're a hazard," a lieutenant told him.

"I almost fight," says Steve.

But recently—during his night school studies for citizenship—Steve learned the meaning of "hazard" in its grammatical.

"It ain't so bad."

But Steve had to take his problem to Mrs. Roosevelt. She appealed to the police. They moved the cart off the street onto the sidewalk and Steve stayed. Now he's got squatter's rights at 1500 Pennsylvania Avenue.

"Now I say to myself what I been thinking," Steve tells me, "I love this country."

For the last seven years, Steve has set aside two days of the year to turn over his day's earnings to worthwhile causes.

On one, he gives his earnings to the

Hudson in Guilty Plea Before Bush

Circuit Judge Recesses Court Until Wednesday

Circuit Judge Dexter Bush convened the April term of Hempstead circuit court Monday morning. Hempstead county's new courthouse, heard motions in civil actions, accepted pleas of guilty and set trial dates in criminal cases, and recessed court until Wednesday.

The jury panel was sworn in Monday morning. Civil cases will be heard on resumption of court Wednesday, with trial of the criminal docket starting next Monday, May 20.

Judge Bush accepted guilty pleas in criminal actions, but did not fix sentences. Results of the criminal docket this Monday were:

Clarence R. Hudson, plea of guilty to forgery. Hudson was arrested some time back in Oklahoma and returned to Arkansas to face charges here. He was remanded to the old county jail at Washington, transferred to the Nevada county jail at Pecos, and finally brought to the jail on top of the new Hempstead court house here.

Nico Williams, plea of not guilty to burglary and grand larceny, trial set for next Monday.

John Boyd, plea of guilty to burglary and grand larceny.

Pete White, plea of guilty burglary and grand larceny.

Wiley Ferguson, plea of not guilty to burglary and grand larceny, trial set for next Monday.

Roosevelt Neals, plea of guilty to burglary and grand larceny.

Beddie Davis, plea of not guilty to receiving stolen property, case set for next Monday.

Hollis Hoard, plea of not guilty to grand larceny, case set for next Monday.

Edward Moore, plea of guilty to burglary.

Clude Turner, plea of not guilty to burglary and grand larceny, case set for next Monday.

Harry Abram, plea of not guilty to maiming, trial set for next Monday.

Lesh Brown, plea of not guilty to grand larceny, trial set for next Monday.

Henry Cheatham, plea of not guilty to assault to rob, trial set for next Monday.

Willie Davis, plea of not guilty to assault with intent to kill, case set for next Monday.

On the other, to the Community Chest.

America's peace in the face of Europe's war has made a deep impression on the squat little fellow from Greece.

"United States is quiet," he said, "I love him. I join him."
